promote problem solving. Also, they just celebrated the 100th day of school!

Third grade - is working on the finishing touches to their Journey to Mars performances later this month. Some classes are doing planet reports as they continue to learn more about our solar system. In math, third graders are learning to multiply two digit numbers: a big step in their curriculum! Many art and literature activities abound with Valentine's Day just around the corner!

Fourth Grade - In language arts, fourth graders are rehearsing a musical about the missions, reading Island of the Blue Dolphins, reading and writing about slow and fast changes to the earth's crust, and writing a report about California Native Americans. In math they are learning geometry. Today they had a presentation by the California Waterfowl Association where they learned about the habitats and adaptations of waterfowl. They are also invited to participate in the Junior Duck Stamp art contest. Next month they will be taking the state writing test and go on their first field trip of the year to the Roseville Utility Exploration Center.

Fifth Grade - They have been continuing their language unit about the West. They have been learning all about effective narrative writing and common grammatical errors. They are wrapping up their science unit on Earth's Weather this month in science and completing their history unit on Life in the Colonies. They will soon be preparing for their final tests for the trimester.
